Hancock jail farm helps reduce food costs

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility's freezers are overflowing with produce grown at the Hancock County Farm on Highway 43.

Hancock County sheriff Ronald Peterson said, "I am well pleased with the way the farm is now going. It took us a while to reap the rewards, but, now we are receiving the dividends."

The farm is under the supervision of Lt. Buford (Slim) Perry, agriculture supervisor, whose salary is paid from a state grant through Pearl River Junior College.

"All the county has to pay is Perry's social security and state retirement, the rest of his salary is paid through the grant," Peterson stated.

Capt. Jim Odom, jail warden, presented the idea of a county farm to the Board of Supervisors in late 1986, while the new Criminal Justice Facility was under construction.

Odom said, "The former Board of Supervisors thought it was a great idea and we received good cooperation from them as well as our present leaders."

The farm is located on Highway 43 next to the county's maintenance barn and also the ball park North of Kiln.

A patch of potatoes produced some 3,000 pounds, and a half pickup truck load of potatoes, squash and beans were delivered to the Hancock County Senior Citizens on Tuesday of this week.

Some 10 to 12 inmates work at the farm Mondays through Fridays and they also receive attend several classes weekly.

Perry stated, "The task of the farm is two-fold, my primary mission is to try and teach the inmates a trade and the importance of responsibility. Hopefully this will help them when they are released. The produce is a secondary and it helps defray the expenses of feeding the inmates."

Odom said, "We are now using fresh produce from the farm, which has six acres under cultivation daily in our kitchen."

"Our freezers are filled to capacity with green beans, white and yellow squash from this year's harvest," Odom added.

The harvest thus far has included cucumbers, tomatoes, string beans, Irish potatoes, white and yellow squash, green peppers and green onions.

Harvest is expected to begin in about three weeks on fresh corn, yellow and red onions, watermelons and cantaloupes.

"This is a year-round project. As the and Spring and Summer crops are harvested, grounds are readied for Fall and Winter crops," Peterson allowed.

Inmates who work at the County Farm also sleep better than others at night, Peterson said.

Several buildings were donated to the sheriff's department and have been salvaged with materials being used to construct sheds for equipment storage.

The county received two sows and a boar hog from the Harrison County Farm to start a herd.

Even with the many successes there was one failure with a catfish pond when the fish had to be destroyed because of a disease.

BaySide Park dog pack invades

BY DENA BISNETTE
BaySide Park resident Henry McClelland does not hate dogs in general -- he has one of his own. McClelland hates dogs that are allowed to run loose and kill his rabbits and birds.

McClelland has already lost four rabbits, two ducks and 10 chickens to marauding dogs. All of the animals were killed in less than one week.

One rabbit cage that normally takes two people to lift and was raised on four-foot legs to keep it safe from the dogs was knocked over, ripped open and the mother rabbit and some of the baby rabbits inside were killed.

McClelland went outside to protect his animals from the early morning attack. He had armed himself with a heavy stick, which he said is the only reason he was able to run into the garage and shut the door before the dogs bit him.

Four surviving baby rabbits were taken indoors, where McClelland and his wife Kim fed them with eye droppers. Only one survived.

Complaints to his neighbors have been to no avail.

Some of his inquiries have led him to other victims of the dogs, such as the man who was attacked while walking his small dog on a leash, or the neighbor who said two of his children have been bitten by dogs while waiting at a school bus stop.

Requests that the neighbors who have dogs tie them up or keep them inside fences have also had no results.

"I've had a couple of neighbors tell me that if you tie a dog up, it makes him mean. So they let him run loose instead."

McClelland estimates that 90 percent of the people who live in BaySide Park and have dogs have no fences. In addition, his wife believes that BaySide Park is a dumping ground for unwanted canines.

She said some of the dogs that have come into her yard are obviously not pets, and act so wild that she doubts anyone could catch one of them. Some of them also look as if they are starving, which she believes is why they have been killing her chickens.

"You can hardly sleep at night; there are so many dogs around here, fighting," McClelland said.

He has talked about the matter to Sheriff Ronald Peterson, who told him that he can protect himself and his property if a dog comes into his yard.

However, McClelland said the only way he can do that is shoot the attacking animals, and he does not want to resort to shooting a dog because the possibility of lawsuit is too great.

"People let them run around loose, but as soon as you shoot one, they're likely to decide they wanted it," he explained.

The canines come into his yard mostly in the evenings and in the early mornings.

"They probably bother me most because I have animals," he explained.

The McClellands moved to BaySide Park in November and their canine visitors started bothering them right before Christmas, when they got their first rabbit.

McClelland raises animals to keep himself busy because he is unable to work, as well as to supplement his social security income.

"I'm retired but I'm not raising these things around here for people's dogs to kill. We have a dog we have to keep tied up. Why should other people keep dogs and not have them tied?"

McClelland called the county dog warden at Peterson's suggestion.

The warden told him that he can pick up a dog only at an owner's request.

The most viable solution the dog warden could provide was use of a live trap to catch the offending animals.

"He told me I could use the trap after a man in Kiln got through with it, because he only has one, and that I could leave it in my yard and call him to pick up a dog whenever it caught one."

"That was a month ago. The man in Kiln asked to use the trap longer. He's already caught seven dogs and called to have them picked up."

Kim McClelland said she is planning to go with her husband to the next meeting of the BaySide Park Civic Association

Bay council rescinds condemnation of house

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Bay St. Louis City Council rescinded the condemnation of a house on Balletine Street, and furthered plans to consolidate the Planning and Zoning Commission with the Board of Adjustments.

The house at 210 Balletine Street owned by Leonard Wilkinson of New Orleans had been condemned by the council on May 17 following complaints from neighbors, and the determination by the council that it was an eye sore and posed potential public hazard.

When the house was condemned, Wilkinson was informed that, if between the time of the condemnation and the actual destruction of the house, he could show to the council that sufficient improvement had been made to the structure and grounds of the house the condemnation proceedings would be halted.

At the meeting Tuesday Wilkinson was able to satisfy the council that the requested improvements had been made.

The council discussed the consolidation of the Planning and Zoning Commission with the Board of Adjustment in order to eliminate duplication of effort that exist between the two entities.

Under the proposed consolidation, current members of the Board of Adjustment will be appointed to open positions on the Planning and Zoning Commission if they wish to take the positions.

In other business the council: —Chose Brown Engineers to draw up the proposal for the 1988 Street Improvement Program.

—Authorized the mayor to procure proposals from collection agencies for the collection of delinquent utility bills.

—Accepted Hancock Square Drive as a city street, so that the merchants located there can now receive their mail at their businesses.

FINISHING TOUCHES—A Mississippi Power Company crew from Pass Christian uses three "cherry pickers" to put the finishing touches on a pole exchange at the end of Main Street Tuesday afternoon. According to Lead Lineman Norman Luker, the old pole, left, was cut short during the process to give the crew more room to work. A cable known as a "jumper" was used while lines were disconnected from the old pole and connected to the new one to keep the neighborhood businesses from having a power outage during the exchange. ## Bay mayor, alderman, attorney named to Blue Ribbon Commission

Secretary of State Dick Molpus announced the selection of the 25-member Blue Ribbon Commission on Public Trust Tidelands.

Constituted primarily of Gulf Coast residents, the commission is chaired by Hugh Keating, a Gulfport attorney and partner with the firm of Dukes, Dukes, Keating & Faneca.

Molpus stated, "The commission will be operating under an extremely rigorous timetable in order to meet a scheduled January deadline for implementation of rules and regulations which the commission will assist in developing. The commission's members are very conscious of the significance of their task as well as the intensity of time and effort that will be required of them. Firsthand, they will realize the impact of their proposals, for now and generations to come. It is an historic task."

In an effort to ensure the development of an orderly tidelands policy, the membership of the commission includes representatives of recreational users, property owners, environmentalists, economic development interests, and individuals with specific technical expertise.

It is balanced geographically with representatives from all areas of the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

The organizational meeting of the commission will take place on Wednesday, June 29, in Biloxi.

During this meeting the commission will receive its charge and divide into various subcommittees. The subcommittees will focus on several issues critical to Public Trust Tidelands management.

The commission initially plans to meet twice a month. Issues of focus will include the establishment of public and private boundary lines, the rights of upland owners, taxation, public access, development and conservation.

To assist the commission with its work in resolving specific technical and legal issues, Molpus has asked other state agencies to contribute expertise and assist in their areas of specialty.

These agencies include the Office of the Governor, the Attorney General's office, the Department of Natural Resources through its Bureau of Geology and Mineral Leasing, and the Department of Wildlife Conservation through its Bureau of Marine Resources.

Each agency, in addition to the Secretary of State's office, will play an important role in the overall management scheme.

This technical assistance group will be chaired by Helen Wetherbee of the Attorney General's office. The assistance group will meet with the commission and its committees as needed.

Members of the Blue Ribbon Commission on Public Trust Tidelands and the Tidelands Technical Assistance Group include:

NATIVE SON

Bigger Thomas (portrayed by Victor Love) is a frustrated, volatile member of Chicago's underclass. He's a young black man looking to move up in the world through any means within his violent grasp.

Mississippi native Richard Wright's explosive novel of racism and the frustrations blacks faced just prior to World War II comes to "American Playhouse" when "Native Son" airs at 8 p.m., Wednesday, June 29, on Mississippi ETV.

The two-hour drama features an all-star cast, including Matt Dillon, Elizabeth McGovern, Geraldine Page and another native Mississippian, Oprah Winfrey, as Bigger's mother.

Garbage disposal needs addressing on long-term basis

The garbage disposal problem facing Hancock County officials is something which has come up frequently in recent years.

The problem in most cases has been settled with a short-term solution.

Then county leaders a few years later are facing the same issue only on a more pressing basis because of stricter standards by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control and other agencies.

The garbage disposal area, especially for the municipalities, keeps moving farther and farther away.

The garbage dumps on Third Street, Bay St. Louis; the Old Sand Pit (now oxidation pond area); Jackson Ridge (Buccaneer State Park) Waveland; and in the Bayou LaCroix Community are now past history.

It seems the Catahoula Dump—half-way to Memphis—is now almost history too, with last week's report of the facility to be filled to capacity within three or four months.

The time now has come for our leaders to come up not only with a short-term solution but also with a very long-term solution for garbage disposal.

We, as Americans, are creating more garbage per person than any other nationality in the entire world, and disposal of the garbage has to take top priority by our leaders on both national and local levels.

Sewage disposal also has been a serious matter and is being addressed by our leaders, and solutions are on the way in Hancock County as well as in other communities across most of the United States.

To us, it seems sewage disposal and garbage disposal should come under the same governmental agency.

In our area we have the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District with equal representation from Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The question we ask is: Why doesn't the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District take over the garbage disposal problem facing Hancock County?

MEC

Mississippi Economic Council
The State Chamber of Commerce

A group of Mississippi's business leaders will meet in Jackson tomorrow to plan their support for county unit legislation.

The business leaders are members of the Mississippi Economic Council, an organization which has supported county government reforms for three decades.

Governor Ray Mabus, who has announced that he will call a special session of the Legislature to consider county government reforms, will meet with the group.

"We are pleased with Governor Mabus' support for county unit and for his plans to call a special legislative session," said MEC Chairman William E. McClure of Columbus. "Our meeting on June 17 emphasizes the cooperation between the Office of the Governor and the state's largest business association in efforts to bring improved county management to Mississippi."

MEC supports a mandatory county unit system for road operations, a system which would eliminate the practice followed by most counties of operating five separate road systems—one in each district—in most counties.

Governor Mabus has named county unit as one of his top priorities. Unit bills passed the House and the Senate in the 1988 regular legislative session, but lawmakers failed to reach agreement on the different versions of the bills which passed the two houses.

The Council has said the unit system should save at least $27 million.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If it concerns you, it concerns us

Heroic qualities of suspended public servants recounted

June 21, 1988

Dear Mr. Editor,

It does my heart good to see the recent gutsy decision of Waveland's Mayor John Longo.

I refer to the rehiring in another city job of suspended Waveland policeman Michael Prendergast, and when a job becomes available, suspended Waveland firefighter Billy Field.

This unusual decision, certainly not politically expedient, was in fact a compassionate, Christian act by a wise and experienced leader and judge of men. It was a correct decision.

I found out four years ago what Mayor Longo has known for a long time: that proven public servants like Prendergast and Field, who risk their lives very day for the citizens of Waveland, and who directly or indirectly have saved countless lives or serious injury in their combined 10 years of community service, deserve due consideration from us all.

My family and I know, because on May 30, 1984 these fine young men rescued my eight-year-old daughter from drowning one and a half miles offshore, where a strong north wind had carried her.

Many people responded to our emergency that day, but Prendergast and Field, who were off duty, paddled my 12-foot flat boat in four-foot seas to rescue her—they got the job done!

Both men were awarded The American Legion's highest award for valor and the saving of a life, and my family's everlasting gratitude.

Waveland firefighter Billy Field has since reached the rank of captain. Michael Prendergast has just received the 1988 Policeman of the Year Award from the Hancock County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving for his diligent and lifesaving work.

Regretably, these young men have made a serious mistake, as we all have at times, but what Mayor Longo saw and is relying on in a moment of tough decision was their strong inherent character.

I can tell you—it is there. Hopefully in time, with our mayor's guidance and the support of the good people of Waveland, these two valuable public servants will be returned to the jobs for which by training and experience they are best suited.

Before judging a man walk a mile in his moccasins

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Sir:

The writer of this letter will admit that the Waveland policeman and fireman were wrong in what they did—dead wrong—but before we are hasty and criticize them, let's look at our own closets.

Which one will be the first to rattle 'dem bones and bring out the skeletons?

Not many. So don't be hasty.

These two men have done a lot of good in their respective jobs.

They have been honored many times. Don't let one mistake ruin their lives.

They know they did wrong and will no doubt pay the price for one mistake, but they deserve compassion—at least the mayor could see this.

Thank God we have some people who still feel for the other person. Let's not be so fast to criticize the other person until we walk in his shoes.

Respectfully,
A. R. Hanemann Sr.

Proposes drastic action to keep bridge clean

June 18, 1988

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

It's happening again—fish litter on the Bay Bridge!

Not only is it unsightly, unhealthy and in all this heat quite smelly, fish litter is totally unnecessary. Simply throw your unwanted trashfish (dead) back into the water for crabs to eat.

Since this is a recurring problem which the police can't seem to resolve, I propose drastic action—a 30-day ban on fishing from the Bay Bridge.

Perhaps denied access for a time, those guilty of littering just may learn to comply with the law. Like many other 'punishment-type laws,' the innocent will also suffer.

Anyone out there have a better idea?

Best regards,
Royce P. Kaupp

Summer means a lot of activities are under way in our community.

On Saturday afternoon, the City of Bay St. Louis' Parks and Playgrounds and the Bay-Waveland Jaycees at 1 p.m. are sponsoring a Pitch, Hit and Run contest for boys and girls ages 8-15.

The events are free and will be held at the Bay High School baseball complex off Athletic Drive, Bay St. Louis.

Participants will only compete in their respective age group with a first and second place trophy to be awarded each age group. All participants will receive a certificate.

It is hoped there will be a lot of boys and girls participating.

Looking to the July 4th weekend, the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139's Annual Kids Fishing Rodeo will be held on Sat., July 2.

The rodeo will be for boys and girls aged 13 and under with a lot of prizes, according to Peewee Dedeaux, rodeo chairman.

The rodeo will begin at 7 a.m. and close at 3 p.m.

Thought we would mention the fishing rodeo so the youngsters could be getting their tackle ready for July 2.

While on the subject of fishing rodeos, The Annual Mississippi Gulf Coast Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo in Gulfport will be held also over the July 4th weekend.

This rodeo is open to persons of all ages and many prizes will be up for those who pre-register and catch the big one in many categories.

On Wednesday of this week, the rodeo princesses made the annual visit to Hancock County.

The visit included a stop at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, James C. Stennis Space Center, Buccaneer State Park's Waveland Pool and a luncheon at Joseph Gex's residence.

Russell Elliott, a Mississippi Deep Sea Rodeo director has such a hard job escorting the princesses each year.

We will be telling you more about the fishing rodeo next week.

Those of you who are early risers should not forget the Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition at 7:30 a.m. today at the Wheel-Inn Restaurant, Bay St. Louis. Walter N. Todd, president, Genesis System, Inc. of Bay St. Louis will be the guest speaker.

Todd's company is involved in the manufacture of equipment used in fuel management of marine transportation.

The company is a leader in its product and Todd should have an interesting story to tell.

This is the weekend for the Annual Mississippi Press Association meeting in Biloxi.

It will give me an opportunity of meeting some longtime friends in the newspaper industry from across the state.

I will even see a few who who worked at The Sea Coast Echo such as David Webb, publisher of The Franklin Advocate in Meadville and we will be able to talk about some of the 'good old days' at the Echo.

EXPOSING MYTHS ABOUT COUNTY MANAGEMENT

Confronting legislators upon their return to Jackson for a special legislative session will be whether to adopt the unit system of operations for county government. The unit system should have been mandated during the 1988 legislative session but, unfortunately, it seems that lawmakers were victims of four 'myths' about county management.

The first 'myth' is that county supervisors are not opposed to the unit system; they just oppose mandating it for every county. If this is the case, why did supervisors in one county adopt the unit system after citizens of that county voted in favor of it by a 21 margin two years ago? Why did supervisors in another county refuse to adopt the unit system after a firm they hired recommended changing from the beat to the unit system?

A second 'myth' is that the unit system has never really been defined. County unit means policy making by the board of supervisors with administrative functions directed by a county road manager employed by the board and responsible to the board. The system would include countywide planning, budgeting, employment, purchasing, construction, maintenance and record keeping.

'Myth' number three is that merits of the unit system have never been proven. In 1976, Coahoma County had a maintenance cost of $849 per mile under the unit system while Bolivar County, directly to the south, had a maintenance cost of $1,369 per mile under the beat system. Jackson County spent five times more for road maintenance than George County, which operates under the unit system.

The fourth 'Myth' concerning the unit system of county government is that it will not work in every county. The unit system applies to management practices, not the form of government. Any county can implement a more efficient form of management practices, no matter the size of the population or the total area of the county.

According to Larry Butler, road administrator for Tunica County, county unit will work in every county; it's just "a matter of the supervisors wanting it to work."

Perhaps now that these myths have been exposed, the Legislature can get on with county reorganization.

STEINER HONORED—Chris Steiner, left, accepts a framed resolution from Beat Five Supervisor Michael Ladner. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors honored Steiner recently for his efforts in improving the fire insurance rating in a section of the East Hancock Fire Protection District. Steiner said he was assisted in organizing the information necessary to qualify the area for a fire rating of nine by Forest "Buster" Summers of Jourdan River Estates, Ray Heitzmann of the Hollywood Drive area and the Garden Isle and Jourdan River Isles Civic Association. The area is considered a subdistrict of the existing fire protection district and qualifies for a better rating under a special provision allowing use of an alternate water supply where a pipeline system does not exist. ## Books wanted for needy children

BY D.C. HARVILL

Books can open one's mind to all the world's possibilities, and at no time is that more important than when we are young.

With that in mind, the Children's Book Bank is requesting the donation of used children's books to be distributed to the children of needy families who go to the Hancock County Food Pantry for food.

The local Book Bank is currently has no books to distribute, according to Food Pantry director Evelyn Johnson.

Johnson said books are needed that are appropriate for children up to 18 years old.

"Some of the people who come in actually have tears in their eyes when we give their children books," Johnson said.

"Some of our clients feel badly about going to the library," she said, "because they don't think they are presentable.

"The Book Bank fills a definite need," she added.

The Book Bank has been in operation for several years in New Orleans and has been very successful, according to Johnson.

The local drop for the Book Bank is at Bookends Bookstore at 111 Highway 90 Bay St. Louis, on the service road near the bridge.

The Food Pantry, located behind the Hancock County Courthouse in the old jail, provides needy families with a four-day supply of food on a strictly emergency basis.

Food for the pantry is donated by various local organizations and businesses.

The pantry is operated by about 60 volunteers and is open from nine to 12 Monday through Friday.

HARVESTING CROPS—Hancock County inmates are busy harvesting beans as they are supervised by Lt. Russell Watts, standing, food service supervisor for the county jail. The County Farm is worked by inmates from the Hancock with the county to refill the pond and restock for a crop of catfish next year.

Raising chickens was given a try at the farm and found not to be economical, Perry stated.

A irrigation system has helped the farm in recent weeks during a drought.

Perry said, "We would have liked to have gotten more rain during the past month, but our irrigation system has really helped save the crops."

Peterson indicated efforts are underway to secure more land for the farm and added, "I am happy we have such a facility and see where more ground under cultivation can help us further reduce inmate food bills."

clared to be invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, such

RABBITS KILLED—Henry McClelland of BaySide Park, left, closes the door on one of his rabbit cages as his wife Kim removes a rabbit from another cage to pet the animal. to see if some kind of leash regulation can be provided in the subdivision, because the county has none. They are also discussing the possibility of bringing a petition to the association.

She said she is not only worried about the chickens, quail, geese and rabbits in the back yard, but also about the pedigree female boxer she had hoped to breed to another boxer. Under present conditions, she is afraid her pet will produce a litter of mongrel puppies fathered by one of the dogs that come into the yard.

She is also worried about her husband's health.

McClelland, a former truck driver who was forced into retirement by three heart attacks and a quadruple bypass, must walk for exercise.

Because he tries to remain in the house during the heat of the day, the best times for him to walk are in the mornings and evenings, which is when the canine invasion begins.

McClelland said a dog barking at him from inside a yard, such as he might encounter if he lived in town, is not a common occurrence in BaySide Park.

In BaySide Park, the dogs come out of the yards when someone walks down a street and not only bark, but chase and snap. McClelland said he has to carry a large stick anywhere he walks.

In addition, his wife is worried about the possibility of having to take rabies shots if she or her husband is bitten by a stray, and whether the shots would be compatible with the medication he is taking for his heart problem.

DOG PROBLEM—Henry McClelland of BaySide Park feeds two young geese. McClelland said he hopes the birds will live to adulthood, as he has been having a continuing problem with loose dogs that have already killed some of his other birds and four rabbits. He said he plans to ask the BaySide Park Civic Association if some kind of leash regulation can be created and enforced. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Know-how can turn 'trash fish' into precious edible resource

BY D.C. HARVILL

"Waste not, want not." Surely most of us are familiar with that bit of wisdom left to us by Benjamin Franklin, but when it comes to our use of the fish we catch we have been shamefully wasteful for far too long, and now we find ourselves seriously wanting.

We've all seen photographs showing proud fishermen posing at the dock with stacks or rows of fish. Often the fish are species generally considered inedible, and wind up being dumped, having been killed only for a picture to satisfy someone's ego.

But are the fish really inedible? Is it possible some species have become the objects of unchallenged, totally unwarranted bad reputations? The victims of negative PR?

If so, then we have been wantonly wasting valuable food, not to mention valuable life, while the few species we deem worthy of our tables are in short supply due to excessive fishing pressure.

No doubt some species, because of an excess of bones or poor quality of flesh, are so unpalatable as to be inedible. Few species, however, are truly inedible.

The Sea Grant Advisory Service, in a survey to determine how fishermen perceive various species, learned that many fish aren't considered edible merely because they don't look the way people generally expect fish to look.

Of the fish included in the survey, those that are brown, mottled, odd shaped, or lumpy are least likely to be considered palatable.

Some species commonly thought undesirable, however, when their appearances and reputations are overcome, and they are properly prepared, are actually delicious.

Other species aren't considered edible due to the high blood or oil content of the meat. Again, the poor reputations of such fish often lies more with improper preparation than any other factor.

Fish with a high blood or oil content lend themselves more to baking or smoking than to other cooking methods.

Among the species which usually go to waste are a category known as pelagic fishes.

Pelagic fish are migratory species that have to swim continually or else they die. Included in the pelagic group are jackfish, bonita, mackerel and sharks.

Since the popular movie Jaws, and the progressively inferior chain of sequels that followed, there has been much hype and hysteria about sharks eating men. But in reality far more sharks have been eaten by men than have eaten men.

In fact, several years ago the New Orleans School System began serving shark in the school cafeterias.

Despite its recent acceptance as a table fish, many people aren't exactly sure how to prepare the flesh of sharks.

According to Dr. Fred Deegen of Long Beach, a fisheries biologist with the Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources, the secret to preparing a shark for consumption is to bleed it thoroughly. The best way to accomplish that, he said, is to hang the fish tail down immediately after it is caught and cut off its tail.

Deegen said shark are a bit harder to clean than most fish, because of their sandpaper-like hide. The reward is worth the effort, though, he said, because sharks have no bones, only cartilage, leaving a large, solid piece of white meat.

Shark can be incorporated into a variety of recipes just by substituting it for the fish normally used. Usually it simply is fried.

According to Deegen, some people soak the meat in milk before they cook it. He adds that he's not sure why they soak it in milk but if people find they like it better that way he's not about to argue.

The Sea Grant Advisory Service has compiled recipes for shark and other species of fish not commonly eaten.

Skates and rays are two other fish that, like the shark have no bones, only cartilage.

The meat of these fish frequently is used as an inexpensive substitute for scallops. Reportedly, the similarity between them is enough to fool most people.

The wings of these fish consist of layers of cartilage between layers of meat. After the wings have been skinned the meat can be fileted from the cartilage yielding firm white meat.

Another group of fish usually discarded before they get to the table are the jackfish, of which the jack crevalle is the most commonly caught in our area.

Some members of the jack family, pompano for example, are considered delicacies, demanding high prices at the market and in restaurants, while jack crevalle, though prized as game fish have been overlooked as table fare, being considered too bloody.

As with shark, if properly prepared, jacks can be good food fish. Again, as with shark, jackfish should be thoroughly bled by cutting off the tail as soon as they are caught.

The little tunny, called bonita locally and often caught by sportsfishermen trolling offshore, falls into the often-discarded category.

However, Dwight Bradshaw, a biologist with the Mississippi State University Research Center at Stennis Space Center, said he finds they are good prepared as the oriental favorite, sushi, or raw fish.

Various species of tuna are eaten in Japan, and now America, at sushi bars where it is sold at exorbitant prices. The little tunny is one of the smallest members of the tuna family.

Bradshaw skins and filets the fish, then removes a strong tasting streak of dark meat that runs along the middle of the filets. The meat then is sliced thinly and dipped in hot mustard or soy sauce. "It is very good," he said.

Bradshaw also has baked little tunny steaks. He said the taste is comparable to tuna bought in a can.

The dark streak of flesh Bradshaw removes from the little tunny is common to many of the pelagic fishes and, in most cases, once it is removed the remainder of the meat is highly edible.

We have long operated under the assumption that fish is plentiful and cheap, but now with a greater demand on the resource we are finding that is no longer true. To satisfy our narrow taste in seafood, we are seeing species overfished to near the point of extinction, while we casually throw away countless others, ignorantly categorized as trash fish, that in reality may be more flavorful than those we've been eating.

Nearly any fish can become a delicacy, and probably is in another area, if prepared in the proper fashion.

Bluefish are a favorite on the East Coast, with numerous recipes dedicated to their preparation, while in our area they seldom if ever are eaten.

Mullet are a standard in this area but they are considered only as bait in many other areas.

How many of us eat the eels we occasionally catch? The Europeans import all they can.

But the best example of how a fish can be transformed, Cinderella fashion, from a "trash fish" to a gourmet's darling has to be the redfish.

Large redfish, 25 pounds and over, had never been considered choice eating. Not until Chef Paul Prudhomme began turning them black for the now legendary gourmet craze, blackened redfish.

So popular is the dish strict regulations have had to be enacted to keep the species from being fished out of existence.

Someone once said if it is blackened, any fish probably would be good.

And nearly any fish can be good if it is prepared properly.

So, let's be adventurous, cast aside our preconceived ideas, and try some of the fish we normally would throw away. Let's experiment. We might be surprised.

Off-track wagering facility opens in Slidell

The second off-track wagering facility in St. Tammany Parish recently opened in Slidell, La.

The Finish Line-Slidell, owned and operated by Jefferson Downs Racetrack in New Orleans, opened for business on Wednesday, June 8.

The new facility is located in Brown's Village Shopping Center on U.S. 11, just north of I-12 in Slidell.

"The roaring success of our first facility in Covington was certainly a factor in the decision to open a second facility in the parish," stated Bryan Krantz, general manager for Jefferson Downs.

"After operating only three months, our daily handle has exceeded our projections by nearly 40 percent."

"This means a real shot in the arm for the horse racing and breeding industry as well as increased revenues for the parish government. We are also very excited about expanding into the Gulf Coast market and hope to attract new fans who don't want to drive into New Orleans," Krantz added.

The Finish Line-Slidell is open year around, featuring live simulcasts from several race tracks across the state.

Races from Louisiana Downs in Bossier begin at 1 p.m. on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays and at 3 p.m. on Fridays. Races from Jefferson Downs in New Orleans are carried nightly, Wednesday through Sunday, starting at 7:15 p.m.

Wagering at an off-track facility is handled just like at a race track, with patrons placing bets prior to the simulcast of the races. Odds are figured at the same rate as the track via computer link-up with the race track where the race is being held. Winners collect as the results of each race are declared official, just like at the track.

The Finish Line-Slidell, with over 9,000 square feet of entertainment area, features a theater seating area with a large television screen, as well as multiple smaller screens, for viewing ease.

"I think our patrons will be pleasantly surprised by the clarity and quality of our video screens," said Krantz. The new facility will comfortably seat 400, has ample free parking, and offers some of the finest dining on the North Shore, featuring the culinary skills of Cordon-Bleu Chef Mark Godeau.

Entry to the Finish Line-Slidell requires a $1 admission fee and no minors are allowed.

The Finish Line-Slidell employs approximately 35 area residents and will be managed by Fred Breckenridge, the former assistant manager of the Finish Line-Covington. Dinner reservations are suggested and can be made by calling 504/646-0400.

Shore bird disappearance baffles researcher

OCEAN SPRINGS—A researcher is searching for clues to the disappearance of a colony of nesting least terns from the roof of a Gautier shopping mall.

Robin Densmore, a Mississippi State University graduate student who has been comparing the nesting success of the rooftop colony with that of a beach colony, said adults, chicks and eggs disappeared sometime between 5 p.m. Saturday and 6:30 p.m. Sunday from the roof of Singing River Mall in Gautier.

Ms. Densmore checks the rooftop colony and a colony on the beach in Gulfport regularly. She estimated that the rooftop colony included approximately 700 adults, 350 nests, 400 unhatched eggs and 40 chicks. She speculated that a flock of crows raided the colony, taking chicks and eggs. She had seen crows steal an egg or a chick a few times a week since beginning her field work sponsored by the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium, a marine research organization headquartered here.

"With the location of the colony, there is little possibility that anything other than avian predators could have taken the eggs and chicks," Densmore said. "It's characteristic of crows to take their prey to another location before eating it, and there was no evidence of egg remains."

Densmore said mall employees noticed terns still in residence at 5 p.m. Saturday. Densmore discovered the disappearance in a 6:30 p.m. Sunday visit to the rooftop research site. In another visit Monday she saw three terns fly over the site twice.

Her checks with other least tern researchers haven't helped clear up the mystery. Her contacts had never experienced the disappearance of an entire colony. They agreed that crows seemed the strongest possibility.

She said that there is little likelihood that human intervention caused the disappearance. "It is unlikely that a person or persons could find every single egg. The eggs are so well camouflaged, they blend in well. I don't think people could have been that thorough. Even if they could have been, it would have taken them so long that they would have been noticed with the high level of security maintained at the mall.

Judith Toups, author of Birds and Birding on the Mississippi Coast, said Tuesday that the numbers of crows have increased dramatically on the Coast during the summer. "Crows are becoming a terrible predator of terns," she said. "Terns are a ready food source, and the crows don't even have to work for it." Toups concurred that, if limited access ruled out human involvement, the crows could be the villains.

"I hope the least terns return next year to their traditional nesting site," Densmore said. "But with this large scale disaster it is questionable." Densmore said she will continue collecting data on the beach colony and will begin looking for another rooftop colony to study. She is a Sea Grant fellowship recipient and is working toward her master's degree at Mississippi State under the direction of Dr. Jerome A. Jackson.

The mission of Sea Grant, an element of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in the U.S. Department of Commerce, is to promote the understanding, wise use and conservation of ocean and Great Lakes resources.

Sea Grant in Mississippi and Alabama is administered through a bi-state consortium. Mississippi consortium members are Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, Mississippi State University, University of Mississippi and University of Southern Mississippi. Alabama members are Auburn University, University of Alabama, University of Alabama at Birmingham and University of South Alabama.

Free registration opens June 28 for Mississippi Deep-Sea Fishing Rodeo

The annual Mississippi Deep-Sea Fishing Rodeo, staged from the Gulfport Small Craft Harbor and billed as the world's largest fishing rodeo, is expected to attract more than a quarter million people July 1-4.

Fish caught in salt water on the Mississippi Sound and the Gulf of Mexico along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, and from fresh water, the rivers, creeks, or ponds to the north for 200 miles are eligible for rodeo prizes.

Registration for individuals is free and will open at Rodeo Headquarters in Jones Park, Gulfport Harbor, beginning Tuesday, June 28, according to Peter Casano, rodeo spokesman.

And, there is no age limit. Tackle will depend on the angler's preference. Anything hooked off-shore or along the 1,500 miles of banks of fresh water bays, lakes and streams may be entered in the contest.

Many youngsters fish from public piers and the beaches while sport fishermen and women head for the open water in pleasure crafts, yachts and charter boats, Casano added. There are 65 fishing camps along the Coast, all located at favorite fishing sites and offering every facility for all sport fishermen, including bait, tackle, boats and refreshments, he said. Charter boats also are available at many locations.

The 25 fish categories are: Salt Water—blue fish, blue marlin, bonita, black fish, barracuda, dolphin, flounder, gar, jack crevalle, lemon fish, red fish, red snapper, sail fish, speckled trout, spanish mackerel, king mackerel, tarpon, tuna, white marlin and wahoo. Fresh Water—bluegill perch, catfish, green trout, shell cracker perch and white perch.

Throughout the rodeo free entertainment, as well as carnival rides and shows will be featured.

A free fireworks display will be held 9 p.m., July 4.

Military Division included in annual Gulfport Deep Sea Rodeo categories

The Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, billed as the world's largest, is scheduled for July 1-4 at Gulfport's Small Craft Harbor.

There will be a special armed forces division again this year. Active-duty military members and dependents can register and fish in either the special division or the original Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo—at no cost.

Armed forces division categories are saltwater speckled trout, flounder and red fish; and freshwater bream, bass and catfish.

Awards will be presented each day of the four-day tournament for the biggest catch in each of the six categories.

Awards will also be presented for the biggest and second biggest fish overall.

Fishing begins at 12:01 a.m. July 1 and ends 4 p.m. July 4. All fish must be checked by the weighmaster before 8 p.m. daily. The final weigh-in is at 4 p.m. July 4.

Fishing waters include the Mississippi Sound and Gulf of Mexico for saltwater fish, and any bay, bayou, river, pond or lake within 200 miles of the Mississippi shoreline for freshwater fish.

All fish must be caught with conventional tackle. Frozen fish will not be accepted.

For more information, call 377-3160.

Bay Area Youth Soccer plans annual meeting

Bay Area Youth Soccer annual membership meeting and election of officers for the 1988-89 soccer season is scheduled tonight at St. Clare School at 7:30 p.m.

Officers and directors of BAYS serve a two-year term of office.

Five members of the board are elected in even-number years and four members are elected in odd-number years.

This year six members will be elected due to the necessity to fill the one-year remaining term of a resigned officer.

A president, secretary, treasurer, two-year commissioners and a one-year commissioner will be elected.

The nominations committee has presented the following slate of candidates for this year's election: for president, Roselin Watson and Bernard Tusa; for secretary, Curtis Colson and Virginia Felder; for treasurer, Mark Uram and Jim Chiniche; for two-year commissioner, Eddie Farve, Jerry Ross, Jimmy Rutherford, Jeff Debenport and Craig Foster; and for one-year commissioner, Timmy Kingston, Ray Kidd and Alvin Kingston.

Women's Distance Festival Run set for July 16

The Gulf Coast Running Club and Garden Park Community Hospital will join in the nationwide celebration of women's running.

For the past several years, Garden Park Community Hospital has been the host of this healthy event and once again, on Saturday, July 16, women, men and children are invited to run together in the 'Women's Distance Festival.'

Race day registration will be from 7 to 7:45 a.m. at the hospital entrance, 1520 Broad Avenue, Gulfport. The course has been accurately measured—flat two-mile loop beginning and ending at the hospital.

There will also be a one-mile fun run for all children 12 and under, and a one-mile walk for all ages.

The entry fee is $7. For information contact Janet Vega, 864-4210.

Bassin' with the pros

by Trey Foerster

PFD: Isn't your life worth one?

If you have a 14-foot flat-bottom boat powered by an electric motor for a small lake or pond, you might not see the necessity of wearing a personal flotation device (PFD)—but you should because one of every four fatalities are drownings from small boats.

But put yourself in a bass boat powered by a 150 h.p. V-6 outboard motor and you'd better think twice about leaving it on the floor!

Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member, best sums up the reason for wearing a PFD: "You ought to use it so you can go fishing again tomorrow!"

There are many PFDs on the market and I'm sure that you've seen a great variety of them at discount department stores, your local bait shop and marinas. But what kind is best for bass fishing? What do you look for in a vest designed for angling?

"As far as picking one out," Cook explains, "I have one that I prefer over anything that I've seen before. It's a jacket that's being marketed for skiers, it's a racing jacket."

It has a zipper but it also has straps and underarm pads, which block your rib cage.

Most jackets have big arm holes where you can get in and out of it and that leaves your rib cage on both sides exposed.

If you do hit the water at a high rate of speed, the impact could knock you out because of the blow to your rib cage.

This jacket has a set of pads that strap around your upper torso and covers up your arm pit and ribs so that if you do strike the water, you won't get that blow.

It also has a neck roll collar to prevent wiplash to some degree, of course, and also has leg straps.

It's supposed to be certified to stay on your body in impacts of up to 100 m.p.h."

Another favorite of the bass tournament circuit is the Johnson Pro Team Bass Vest.

"I think it has very innovative ideas with the straps that clip around your belt so that it won't ride up," says Randy Fite, Johnson Outboards pro Staff member. It also features an "O-ring" for the kill switch and handy pockets.

But there are still drawbacks to PFDs for fishermen, according to Fite. "Some PFDs are so cumbersome that it really doesn't give you enough mobility to fish in the style of fishing I like to do or most of the pros do. I think the next step will be when someone can come up with a PFD that is attractive, comfortable and yet could float you upright if you were unconscious in the water."

No matter who you talk with, all the pros agree that you ought to secure your lifevest before you turn your motor on and that the PFD should be worn at all times while on the water whether or not the boat is moving.

Cook also makes a few more recommendations that make a lot of sense.

"I would recommend that anyone who wears a PFD, wear one that fits tight. If you end up in the water, especially if the water is cold and assuming you're not unconscious, you tire easily and lose energy and strength. The next thing you know, your arms are above your head and zip, your jacket's off because of the big arm holes and lack of tightness around the body. It's got to be tight enough to cling to your torso so you won't come out of it. I think leg straps are by far the best choice in that type of situation."

There's also one more piece of advice Cook gives: "I never start my engine without putting my jacket on (in accordance with bass tournament rules) because I got two little boys and I want to be their daddy from now on!"

Those are the two best reasons I've ever heard.

Ken Cook responds to a letter to "Bassin' with the Pros" from Steven P. Starch of Chardon, Ohio, who asks: "What would an entry fee be in a professional tournament?"

"It depends on what you call a professional tournament," Cook states. "The professional circuits that I'm aware of where a person has an opportunity to make a living—that would be my description of a pro tournament—is B.A.S.S. or U.S. Bass, and possibly the Hungry Fisherman tournaments on the East Coast."

"B.A.S.S. entry fees for this year are $450; U.S. Bass is $300. Any time the purse is $10,000 and up, it's to be considered a professional tournament and for most of those types of purses, your entry fee is $100 and up."

If it has been a while since you last treated your outboard motor to a tune-up, consider scheduling an appointment in the fall or winter months with your dealer. Don't wait until April or May, when the service department at most dealerships is swamped. The service manager is often looking for work to do in November and December, and many stores run off-season specials. Tune up now, and you'll be ready to go when the fish start biting again.

Coast Episcopal accepts Freedom Shrine

The Coast Episcopal High School has announced the donation of The Freedom Shrine by the Gulfport Chapter of the Exchange Club of America.

The Freedom Shrine, inspired by a traveling exposition of American historical documents which toured the U.S. after World War II, is composed of exact photographic copies of 28 of the most famous documents in American history.

It includes copies of such documents as the Mayflower Compact, the Constitution of the United States, the Gettysburg Address as well as John F. Kennedy's Inaugural Address.

Since 1949, the Exchange Club of America, which is a service organization dedicated to the perpetuation of the American heritage and its principles of freedom, has installed thousands of Freedom Shrines in schools, government buildings in the United States and at military installations around the world.

Dedication ceremonies for the Freedom Shrine at Coast Episcopal High School were conducted by John Foster, chairman of the Freedom Shrine committee, and Sharon Woodfield.

Coast Episcopal High School invites the public to view the Freedom Shrine each weekday during school hours. Contact Dr. Thomas Bates, headmaster, for more information.

WDSU-TV addresses the issue of children and AIDS

In a one-hour For Kids' Sake special airing Friday at 7 p.m., WDSU 6 will give parents and children an opportunity to explore together the sensitive topic of AIDS.

Hosted locally by WDSU 6 anchor Lynn Gansar and nationally by basketball player Julius Erving, with reports from Health and Science Editor Max Gomez, "Teach Your Children Well" is both a primer on the AIDS crisis for teens and pre-teens and an attempt to protect a generation that, for the most part, has not yet been touched by the AIDS virus.

While the program will profile young people coping with the disease, its emphasis is on education for the majority who can still avoid contracting it.

Teens themselves help present the information, including actresses Tracey Gold of Growing Pains and Missy Gold of Benson.

Parents contributing to the program include actor Mike

Farrell of MASH who discusses the responsibility of parents in educating their children about AIDS, and Dr. Art Ulene, medical correspondent for NBC's Today, who provides more specific advice that parents can pass along to their kids.

"The transmission of this disease by the sharing of IV drug needles and sexual contact is running unchecked through our society," host and parent Julius Erving says.

"Unless parents do something and do it soon, AIDS could become the 'Vietnam' for a whole generation," he said.

GRIZZLY SUBJECT

Once the grizzly bear dominated the West as the embodiment of savage strength and unbounded freedom. Today, it faces an uncertain future.

"Grizzly and Man: Uneasy Truce" at 7 p.m., Sunday, June 26, on Mississippi ETV, the premiere program in a new season of "National Audubon Society Specials," traces the plight of this last symbol of the Wild West, from its heyday to its modern-day status as threatened species.

REACHING SUMMIT

In 1986 a joint Australian-American mountaineering team set out to conquer Gasherbrum IV, a perilous climb in Pakistan's Karakoram Range. Only one man had reached the summit before them, but dozens had died trying.

Mississippi ETV viewers can join this "Adventure" at 8 p.m., Monday, June 27, when the climbers face a trek "Harder Than Everest."

Along the way, the climbers face oxygen-thin altitudes, a two-week-long blizzard and an avalanche—all in their quest for the top.

Senior Citizen Jobs

Seniors Job Registry, Russell Youth Court Building, 126 Court Street, Bay St. Louis, offers placement services to employees and employers.

The registry is a free community service provided by National Council of Senior Citizens Senior Aides Program funded by the Department of Labor through South Mississippi Planning and Development District.

The registry attempts to place seniors 55 years old or older in hourly, daily, weekly or monthly positions, according to Gertrude Sauer, coordinator. Call 467-7945 for additional information. Office hours are 8 a.m. to noon Mondays through Fridays.

Senior Center

Located in the Valena C. Jones Bldg. at 301 Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis, the Center serves Hancock County citizens 60 plus years of age.

Under the Hancock County Human Resource Agency, the Center provides classes in ceramics, macrame, art, quilting, counted cross stitch, silk flowers, Christmas ornaments, framing, wood working and various other crafts. A morning snack is provided with donations from various clubs and businesses.

The Center has a contract to provide 30 home delivered meals a day to those seniors who cannot provide for themselves, and 35 meals for those who have a need for a hot, well-balanced meal daily in the cafeteria at the center.

Transportation is provided through a contract with Coast Area Transportation for most seniors in the county to bring them into the Center, or to take them to the grocery, doctor, etc.

The contract with Methodist Senior Services provides two homemakers for about two hours a week to homebound, needy seniors to do light house-keeping or errands for them.

For more information, call the Center at 467-9292 from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Pines Day Care Center Awards Program

On Thursday, May 19, Pines Day Care Center conducted its annual Awards Ceremony.

This year there were 10 children who graduated from the Pre-School program and will attend Kindergarten this fall.

Pastor Vernon Knight opened the program with a prayer.

The children did their songs from the Alphagator A I series they learned this year. The children were entertained by a religious puppet show with the 'Jesus Loves Me' messenger and Willie and Tillie, the puppets.

Special awards were given to the teachers, Mrs. Mary Johnston, infant class; Mrs. Brenda Spansel, toddler to two year-olds; Mrs. Terri Willson, three-year-olds; Mrs. Tammy Brogle, four-year-olds and preschoolers; and Ms. Tina Urbina, part-time helper.

The teachers presented the director of the center, Mrs. Lori Combs, with a special gift. The children who graduated from the pre-school class and will attend Kindergarten this fall are Jessica Bates, Sheree Blake, Brittany Booth, Nathan Deal, Joshua Delk, Raymond Estapa, Lisa Halferty, Peter Sakalaukus, Danielle Spiers and Alison Walsh. Each child received a certificate and an award.

Children in the four-year-olds class who received certificates are Rachelle Combs, Joshua Dear, Stephen Kulikowski, Michael Simpkins and Lisa Spansel.

Children in the three-year-olds class who received certificates are Nicholas Dudek, Kirby Haynes, B. J. LaRoche, Kevin Lee, Joey Munger, Jason Ostrowski, Thomas Pennington, Ashely Rutherford, James Sakalaukus and Joseph Statton.

Children who received certificates for the toddler to two-year-olds are Christina Armato, Michael Cure, Charles Fricke, Sheena Henry, Brandon Higgins, Timothy Kulikowski, Heath Ladner, Daniel Spiers, Jenna Frefny, Laurain White and Rachael Zimmerman. The infant class received a 'Good Baby Award' certificate. They include Amanda Brogle, Ian Ostrowski, Bruce Rushing and Al Walsh III.

Refreshments were served after the program in the center for all who attended.

The children began their summer program June 1.

The fall program will begin when school re-opens.

The center is open from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Income investment advice given to retirees

Living with a set income, usually a retirement pension, can create financial problems for the elderly. With only so much money to depend upon, retired persons want to stretch that money as far as it can go, but today's investment programs can leave them confused.

Ron Harp of Edward D. Jones and Company gave a few tips for elderly investors to help make their money work more efficiently for them.

"I have always been of the opinion that there is no one best investment," Harp said.

"Rather, a combination of investments that serve different purposes working together to meet the individual's income needs."

He said after working with so many retirees he has seen a pattern in how their primary investment goals change.

"During the working years the important goal was to accumulate funds. Growth was the primary objective," he noted. He added that as retirement age approaches, the investment emphasis turns to safety of income. "However, of equal and possibly more importance, is the objective: safety of income," he stressed.

"I am reminded of a gentleman who, three to four years ago, had $100,000 in a money market fund," Harp remarked. "He used the income off this short term investment to supplement his social security. Everything seemed fine—he was earning 11 percent and the $11,000 interest income plus social security was going to be an adequate amount to live on.

"What he was most concerned with was the safety of his principal. Unfortunately, he didn't realize the 'gamble' he was taking with his future income. Today his interest income is less than $6,000 and has not been adequate to meet his income needs. So as principal is spent the income continues to decline even further.

"This is why it is so important to consider your current and future income needs and look for investment alternatives to better meet these needs," he emphasized.

Harp said keeping an adequate amount of funds in short term money market funds "is a great place for your emergency funds." He added that people shouldn't place too much of their funds in this type of account, though.

"Keeping too much in this area can penalize you by not earning much income," he explained. "So one needs to be realistic on just how much you might need here on a short term basis."

He mentioned that several investments are designed to generate more income, such as longer term certificate of deposits, government bonds and high quality corporate bonds and various mutual funds that can offer reliable income alternatives.

"If taxes are still a concern, many retirees purchase insured municipal bonds that pay federally tax free interest and in some cases, state tax as well," Harp noted.

"Retirees from many walks of life and varied incomes invest their money," Harp stated. "It doesn't matter how much money you have to invest, there's always some way to make your money work harder for you."

ProAge Group offers programs for the elderly

ProAge, the senior citizen program at Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, offers a number of programs designed specifically to meet the needs of those over the age of 55.

Among the programs offered are Elderwalk, Eldercise, Outreach Eldercise, and a monthly educational program, known as Wellness Workshop.

The Elderwalk group meets at 8:30 a.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the North Shore Square. Participants chalk up mile after mile in the sheltered environment of the mall.

Eldercise meets from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., Monday and Thursday, at the Sports Medicine and Fitness Center. This is a non-strenuous exercise program which is free to anyone over the age of 55.

A new program being offered by ProAge is Outreach Eldercise. The non-strenuous Eldercise program is taken on location at Country Garden Estates. Outreach Eldercise meets at 10:30 a.m., Monday in the Country Garden Estates Recreation Hall.

The Wellness Workshops are held the third Thursday of each Monday at Slidell Memorial and focuses on educational topics of interest to the elderly.

For more information on ProAge services, contact Martha Caruso, program director, at 643-2200, ext. 1630.

ETV Briefs

NOVA

The Pantheon in Rome still stands thousands of years after it was completed. For almost 1,400 of those years, its massive dome was the largest in the world. How did Roman builders create the large sphere without the benefit of modern technology?

At 8 p.m., Tuesday, June 28, "Nova" takes ETV viewers on a tour of beautiful buildings around the world, including The Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, as Robert Mark, professor of engineering and architecture at Princeton, searches for "The Mystery of the Master Builders."

This encore presentation will also be broadcast at 11 p.m., Thursday, June 30.

SOUTHERN GARDEN

Fresh produce in a suburban mall? On Monday, June 27, "Farmweek" takes a look at two enterprising Simpson County farmers who are employing the latest innovation in produce marketing.

"Farmweek" airs Mondays at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

Alex Ramsey and Don Womack are leasing space in Jackson's Northpark Mall to sell a variety of produce, including peaches, blueberries and assorted vegetables. Their store, The Southern Garden, is the first of its kind in Mississippi, and is part of a growing trend in malls all over the country.

Seniors should be aware of crime

Crimes against the elderly are familiar new items in America today, a situation that was almost unknown until recent years.

Too many people mistakenly think this type of crime happens only in urban areas. Unfortunately, crimes against the elderly are on the rise in small and medium-sized communities also.

Older people should be aware that they often are considered "easy targets" by criminals. However, the elderly do not need to live in constant fear of attack. By using precautions, they can avoid most potential crimes.

Older people don't necessarily need physical strength, agility and speed, but they do need to be alert, cautious, self-confident and take certain preventive measures against crime.

Protection at home includes using locks. Identifications should not be attached to keys, because if they were lost a criminal could quickly find the house and rob it.

Windows should be locked and curtains and blinds drawn at night. A window or peephole should be used to identify persons before opening the door. Do not open your door to strangers.

Money should be kept in a bank. Social Security and pension checks should be sent directly to the bank for deposit in your account. Never give your charge account number to anyone over the phone.

Personal information should not be given to strangers over the phone. Nuisance calls should be reported to the police.

A dog can provide excellent protection and good company if a person is willing and able to care for one.

When leaving home, outside lights should be left on. Inside lights and a radio playing can give the impression of would-be burglars that someone is in the house. Don't leave a note telling when you'll be back.

Have another person accompany you when possible, since there is safety in numbers. On buses, hold onto packages and sit near the driver.

Leave your purse at home, if possible. A purse with a shoulder strap is particularly hazardous, since you may be thrown to the ground and injured if it is snatched. A wallet should be carried in a safe inside pocket. Don't carry large amounts of cash.

If you return home with another driver, have the person wait until you are inside the house. Have your key ready and watch out for anyone hiding nearby.

When driving, keep the doors locked and the window up for safety. Hide your purse and packages of sight. Never pick up hitchhikers.

When returning to your car, check the back seat and floor to be sure that no one is hiding inside. If your car breaks down, raise the hood, keep the doors locked and stay inside. If strangers stop to help, ask them to alert the nearest service station or the police for you.

Before going on a trip, protect your home. Stop delivery of newspapers and mail. Leave a 'lived in' look: lights on, shades up, lawn tended. Alert your neighbors that you are leaving so they can watch your house.

Use caution at airports and bus terminals. Leave identification inside the locked luggage. Carry traveler's checks and credit cards instead of cash.

Older people should be particularly aware of potential frauds and swindles. Beware of offers which give something for nothing or very little, or of persons who pressure you to buy something right away or to hand over money to them for any sort of scheme.

If a burglar is in your house while you are there, do not confront him. Lock your bedroom door from inside and quietly call the police.

If you return home and find that your house has been burglarized, call the police from a neighbor's phone and wait there until help arrives.

If you are attacked yell, scream or blow a whistle to alert other people. You may scare off the attacker.

Report any crimes or suspicious activities to the police, giving as much detail as possible. You can help to stop crime if you are willing to press charges when a criminal is caught.

Persons of any age can avoid crime by using protection and caution, and by refusing to be entrapped in fraud schemes. Positive action and alertness can help remove fear and bring peace of mind, particularly to the elderly.

IS THERE A COLD NOSE IN YOUR FUTURE?

A lot of you love animals, but don't own pets yet.

That's probably because you know that owning a pet means investing time and money in its care.

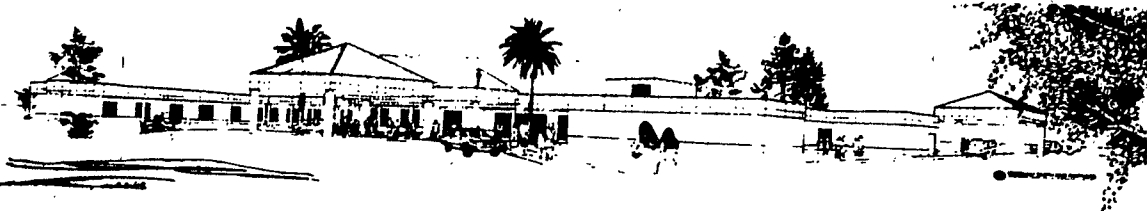

You know that cute kittens must have their litter boxes cleaned regularly, must have shots each year, and must be groomed.

And that cuddly puppies must be trained and walked regularly and licensed — and forgiven for muddy paws now and then.

We know you wouldn't own a pet unless you knew you could give it the best of care. We just want you to know that when you are ready, call us we have lots of beautiful puppies and kittens waiting for responsible homes.

Mealtime hints help older problem eaters

Cooking for one is discouraging; it's hard to make meals in portions of one and few people enjoy eating three days of leftovers.

Some older people, especially elderly men who live alone, lose interest in eating because they have problems buying and preparing food. A poor diet can result in lack of energy, malnutrition and bad health, a dangerous situation for older people.

By developing a few simple habits, grocery shopping, cooking and mealtime can be easier and more enjoyable.

Plan meals in advance and note the ingredients you will need. Before shopping, check your supply of staples such as flour, sugar, rice and cereal. Keep some canned or frozen fish, meat, fruits, vegetable, dinners and soups on hand for days when you don't feel like cooking or can't go to the store.

Bread freezes well, and powdered nonfat milk or canned evaporated milk can both be stored easily.

Meals should include foods from the four basic food groups of dairy, meat, bread and vegetable. Avoid eating too many foods that are high in fat, sugar or salt.

When buying groceries decide which size item is best for you. A large can or package may be cheaper per unit, but it is not a bargain if most of the contents are thrown away. If possible, consider sharing large packages with a friend.

Frozen vegetables purchased in bags are economical because you can use small amounts at a time.

If an item at the meat or produce counter is too large, ask an employee to repackage it.

Read the content labels on packaged and canned foods. The ingredient present in the largest amount is listed first, followed by ingredients of smaller amounts. The calorie, protein, carbohydrate, fat and sodium content per serving may also be listed. Also be sure to check packages for freshness dates.

Read the unit pricing because it will show which brand or package sizing costs less.

Beware of items listed as 'natural foods,' 'health foods,' and 'organic foods.' Such items are usually more expensive and are no better or safer to eat than those found in regular grocery stores.

When preparing meals, make larger amounts of dishes you like to eat. Refrigerate the leftovers to eat in a day or two. Divide leftovers into individual servings, write the contents and date on each package and freeze for later use.

To avoid excess fat, trim meat before cooking and broil, bake, boil, or pan-fry without added fat instead of frying in fat. Drain off cooked fat whenever possible. If soups and stews are made in advance and refrigerated, the hardened fat on top can be removed before reheating.

Make food more appealing by trying new recipes. Look for recipes which can be prepared in a glass or cup, like fruit milkshakes, or eggnog, which give high doses of nutrition in small servings.

Many people don't like to eat alone. Invite a friend for lunch or dinner. It's more fun to cook for someone else, and the invitation may be returned.

FRONTLINE

During the last month of her life, Pamela Guenther was terrified. She asked for help from her friends, the police and the courts. She told them, "My husband is going to kill me."

In March 1987, in the parking lot of a Denver steak house, David Guenther fatally shot Pamela as their two young children watched.

"Frontline" with Judy Woodruff, at 9 p.m., Tuesday, June 28, on Mississippi ETV, traces the nightmare of Pamela Guenther's murder and examines the failure of the system to protect her from the violent man who has repeatedly vowed to kill her.

How does the aging process affect your driving ability?

What is the recommended way to determine safe following distance? (Hint: It's not the car-length formula).

Which drugs and medications could cause problems for you behind the wheel?

When are you expected to yield the right-of-way?

How can you best respond to adverse driving conditions, such as snow, ice, rain, fog and dark or night?

Where are the danger spots on a parking lot?

At what temperature is an icy road most slippery?

How can you compensate for blind spots in your own and others' vehicles?

What are the recommended ways to compensate for hearing loss when driving? (1/3 of drivers 55 and older experience this.)

How does the narrowing peripheral vision and declining depth perception that we all acquire with age affect situations in the driving environment?

What driving situations are most endangered by the slowed reaction times that accompany aging?

What are the safety rules for making a left turn? (The second most common violation of older drivers).

Why do drivers aged 55 and over have more accidents per mile than drivers aged 30 to 54?

How should you handle right-of-way situations, the number one problem area for drivers aged 55 and over?

55 Alive Mature Driving is eight hours of classroom instruction that refine existing skills and develop safe, defensive driving techniques. Produced by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and conducted throughout the country in two half-day sessions, 55 Alive teaches preventive measures to use when driv-

FOCUS ON SENIORS

by Meredith Cameron

Nursing homes: One out of every four Americans over the age of 65 will reside in one for some period in their remaining years. There are 15,000 nursing homes in America; as America ages in the next decade, that number is expected to double.

The nursing home industry has been beset by major problems — from outright scandals to sloppy management and poor care. It still, however, continues to be a booming business. As a result, when a family or individual is faced with choosing a facility for a loved one or for oneself, it is increasingly difficult to pick the good from the bad.

A new book called How To Evaluate And Select A Nursing Home (Addison-Wesley, $7.95) by The People's Medical Society, offers answers to a great many questions one should ask when considering the selection of a nursing home.

This book guides family members, friends, or the prospective patient into making one of the most emotional decisions of a lifetime. It points out the following areas, and asks the following questions, to help you make an informed choice:

Calculate how much money you can afford for nursing care.

Evaluate different kinds of nursing homes. (The book includes The Patient's Bill of Rights).

Part of the checklist:
Is changing roommates an easy procedure?

Do rooms have individual thermostats?

If there are TV sets, do they have earphones?

Does the staff speak in non-condescending terms?

Is a physician on the premises for a fixed period of time each day?

When is an R.N. on duty?

Is there a helpful pharmacist to maintain patient information?

Fast-Track Food Facts:

eating tips for people with high blood pressure

For many people, the fast pace of American life demands meals that keep up with that lifestyle. Fast-food restaurants (e.g. hamburger eateries, fried chicken carry-outs) often meet this need quickly and relatively inexpensively. However, the convenience of fast foods does not always mean good nutrition.

The fast foods served in these eateries are frequently high in calories, fat, and salt, all of which make it harder to control your weight and sodium intake. Since being overweight is known to increase your chances of developing high blood pressure, choose fast foods carefully to help control your high blood pressure.

But how do you know which foods are high in calories, fat and sodium? And how do you decide where to eat? Many fast-food restaurants have published information about the calorie, fat and sodium content of their menu items. Ask for one of these nutrient brochures at your local restaurant, or write to the headquarters of these restaurants. Calorie, fat, and sodium values can vary significantly from item to item and from one restaurant to another. To get you started, here are some general tips to keep in mind when eating at fast-food restaurants.

To reduce your calorie and fat intake

—Fast-food breakfasts tend to be higher in fat, calories and cholesterol than are other meals. Choose cereal with low-fat milk, fruit or juice, plain toast, English muffin, fruit muffin or bagel. Plain pancakes are much lower in fat and cholesterol than are breakfast sandwiches. Just remember not to add butter and go light on the maple syrup.

—Virtually all fast-food breakfast sandwiches are high in fat. If you do order one of the sandwiches that also include meat, the best choice would be one made with Canadian bacon, the leanest of all breakfast meats. Sausage sandwiches are the highest in fat and calories.

—Choose broiled, baked, or grilled chicken or fish when possible. If fried is the only choice on the menu, remove the breading or skin.

—Eating deep-fried chicken or fish with batter or breading offers no reduced-calorie or reduced-fat advantage over red meat. In fact, a plain roast beef sandwich has half the fat of a fried breast of chicken or fried fish sandwich.

—Extra crispy fried chicken has more calories and fat than regular fried chicken.

—Mashed potatoes (even with a small amount of gravy) are much lower in fat and calories than are french fries. And onion rings have even more fat and calories than do french fries.

—Use small amounts of ketchup and mustard as condiments. They are lower in calories and fat than are mayonnaise and mayonnaise-based sauces. But even ketchup and mustard must be used in moderation if you're watching your sodium intake.

—Salad bars are a healthy option offered at many fast-food restaurants. When lining up at the salad bar, choose lettuce or another variety of greens, and stick with the plain fresh fruits and vegetables. To cut down on calories and fat, avoid mayonnaise-based items such as potato salad, macaroni salad, and pasta salad. Items such as bacon bits and cheese can quickly add calories and fat.

—Use salad dressing sparingly. A tablespoon of most salad dressings contains about 100 calories.

—Soft ice cream has the lowest calories and fat of most desserts generally available on fast-food menus. A plain soft ice cream cone has around 190 calories and 5 grams of fat. Cookies and pies have about 100 calories more, and a much higher percentage of their calories come from fat.

—Request low-fat or skim milk.

—Ask what kind of fat is used to fry foods at the restaurant. Avoid items that have been fried in beef fat, lard, coconut oil or palm oil.

To reduce your sodium intake

—Order sandwiches without the pickle (93 mg sodium). Use small amounts of ketchup (180 mg per tablespoon) and mustard (180 mg per tablespoon). Cheese adds 200 to 400 mg of sodium per slice.

—Skip the bacon bits, pickled vegetables, cheese, olives and croutons at the salad bar.

—French fries are not as high in sodium as most people think.

They taste salty because all the salt is sprinkled on the outside of the fries. Ask the counter person to hold the salt, and you'll save yourself a couple hundred milligrams of sodium.

—Order pizza with vegetables such as mushrooms, green peppers and onion. Skip the pepperoni, sausage and ham.

Fast-food meals can be either laden with calories, fat and salt or relatively low in calories and healthy. The next time you eat in a fast-food restaurant, remember, you can eat wisely and healthy if you make the right choice.

Osborne takes win in golf tournament

BY DENA BISNETTE

Annie Laurie Osborne has won the third annual Golden Oldies Women's Golf Tournament at Diamondhead.

Runners-up include Rhea Fox, Nell Perry and Marge Phlugfelder, tournament organizer Alice Little said.

Osborne and Seabelle Simoneaux were closest to the hole, she added.

There were an even dozen entries in this year's tournament, Little said.

She came up with the idea of the tournament, which includes nine holes and is limited to women 70 years old or older.

"We were just a bunch of ladies who played golf together and we thought it would be a fun way to spend a day," she explained.

"We're always looking for things to do. It's a little unique."

The idea was expanded to include husbands as caddys as well as trophies and an awards luncheon. The tournament is usually played in April but this year was postponed a few weeks.

It is a nonprofit event because entry fees are used for the tournament expenses and to provide prizes.

There are two companion tournaments, one for men 70 or older and a fall tournament for couples that last October drew 20 entries.
